Let Me See Your Eyes

If an hour's reading makes your eyes ache, if printed matter occasionally grows misty. If you are obliged to stop work periodically to rest your eyes for a few moments if you find it easier to read nearer than the normal, 12 inches or further than this, if you cannot recognize people across the street, if you cannot read street names easily or cannot distinguish the time by public clocks; if you have to make an effort to see clearly, knitting the brows for example, if vivid light gives you pain in the eyes, or you require more light than hitherto; if you have any of these difficulties let me see your eyes, so that you may learn definitely whether glasses have become necessary.

Some Remarks Anent "H. C. L."

It was a philosopher who said: "Life is just one darned thing after another." So now that we have the election over, and no special war scare in sight, we are devoting our entire time and attention to the high cost of living. It does seem sad to have the poor washerwoman trade her diamond tiara for a peck of potatoes, and the poor deserving owner of a "tin Lizzie" hock his Standard Oil stock to buy bread, yet they all keep on buying just what they want, and seem to have the money to do it with, and at the same time continue to dress well and have money enough to patronize every movie show in town every night and twice on Sunday. The "poor laboring man" isn't doing much kicking, as his wages have been increased more in proportion, but the "white-shirted fellow" whose salary has not been increased, yet who almost of a necessity must keep up his place in society, is having hard lines. Even a Democratic congress can't do much more than appoint a committee to investigate. The real remedy is with the people themselves. A family who lives principally on delicatessen prepared foods and spends half its income on amusements and luxuries without thought of economizing on these, has the loudest holler. If all of us would try to live within our incomes, regardless of what our neighbors think or say, old "H. C. L." wouldn't eat half so big a figure. Americans today are buying more diamonds and automobiles than ever before, and even the poorest are living "higher" than ever. And this in itself explains a whole lot of the "H. C. L."

Chamber of Commerce for Englewood.

A United Effort to Be Made by All Englewood Business Men to Put Our Town on the Map.

So closely allied are the interests of the Englewood Commercial association with the business and civic progress of the community that it seems only natural and inevitable that the business men should interest themselves in its new activities. Such rapid strides have been made, such radical changes have absorbed the commercial field of the past few years that everything else has been neglected. The most vital force in business—co-operation—was unheeded.

Englewood business men have begun to realize that their assets are in the future of Englewood. They now know that the community problems are those of every individual, and only by reasoning and working together, can they hope to find their right solution.

The Commercial association is everybody's business. It is to become the clearing house for the deliberate study of problems and plans. It is to become the source of concrete tangible results. The operation of the association will be under the departmentized plan whereby the membership will be directly responsible for its welfare in contrast to the old system of a small coterie guiding and forwarding its projects according to their own dictates.

The rejuvenated association will be divided into departments to suit the varied needs and interests of its members and the community which they serve and wish to advance. Each department will be supervised by a director who will be chosen by referendum because of his proficiency in his position. Responsibility is fixed, the tasks are equitably distributed. Of necessity the preliminary work must be undertaken by a small group, but so firm is their faith in the value and benefits to be derived that their success is already assured.

A more united Englewood is the aim of the rejuvenation of the Commercial association. It is about to become the workshop, where latent talent can be put to work for good. It is unfortunate that the word "commercial" should be used in the name for the substitution of "community" would more truly express the motive desires and services.

Service is the first demand of business today. The center upon which we depend for a livelihood and support has a right to demand our attention. The money you make is not alone for personal desires, but a portion must be spent in the overhead, in the community upkeep. There is only a moral obligation to meet these demands, but when you turn a deaf ear to its demands you are directly retarding commercial progress and your own business.

It is a waste of time to go over the failings of the "might have beens." It is for everyone to cast off his antipathy. Community preparedness, to meet demands and calls with success means individual responsibility and co-operation with one another.

The value of the constructive work in the Englewood Commercial association will be determined by its achievements. Hundreds of other communities stand ready witnesses to the effectiveness of co-operative, harmonious action, the resultant force of a little encouragement from everybody.

WEDDINGS

PARKER-HIRSCHAUER.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Parker of 5631 Shields Ave. announce the marriage of their daughter, Nellie Mae, to Walter J. Hirschauer, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Hirschauer of 7700 Eggleston Ave., on Wednesday evening, November 29, at the Crearar Memorial Presbyterian church, 57th St. and Prairie Ave., at 7:45 p. m. The wedding was followed by a reception at the home of the bridegroom.

The bride was attended by Mrs. Albert E. Parker as matron of honor. Her bridesmaids were the Misses Isabel and Esther Hurel, Olive Friberg and Carrie Routliff. Little Robert Bright of Bellvidere, Ill., acted as ring-bearer, and Ruth Rysdon and Mildred Parker were flower girls. Mr. Walter Swanson acted as best man, and the ushers were Elmer Stageman, Erhart Anders, A. Johnson and R. Swanson.

The bride wore a gown and train of white charmeuse trimmed with imported lace and pearls. Her veil was held in place with lilies of the valley, her bouquet being a shower of lilies of the valley and sweet peas.

The matron of honor wore a gown of white satin and carried an arm bouquet of pink rose buds. Two of the bridesmaids wore dresses of pink crepe de chine with an overdrape of green tulle and carried arm bouquets of yellow roses. The flower girls were dressed in pink crepe de chine and carried baskets of pink rose petals.

They were the recipients of many useful and valuable presents.

Mr. and Mrs. Hirschauer left for a warmer climate immediately following the reception, and will be at home after January 1, 1917.

LAURITSEN-SHEARMAN.

The marriage of Miss Gertrude Margaret Shearman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ellsworth Shearman of 6340 Normal Blvd., to Louis A. Lauritsen, was celebrated Saturday evening at 8:30 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents. Rev. Arthur J. Francis officiated. The young people had no attendants. Little Majory Holmes, flower maiden, preceded the bride, who entered on her father's arm. Mrs. Kitty Sullivan Hartman played the wedding march. About 70 friends and relatives were present at the ceremony and partook of the excellent repast which followed. The young people have an apartment in the new Hindon, at 6548 Yale Ave, where they will be "at home" after January 1, 1917. As Miss Shearman, the bride is well known in Englewood, where she has lived from birth. Mr. Lauritsen has many friends, socially and commercially, through his studio at 318 63d St.

ENGLEWOOD THEATRE

"The Tempters." What a name—and what a show! A self-starting 60-horse power, twin-six production that moves along at such a breakneck pace that it takes your breath away—yes and leaves you speechless with surprise except for the "Ahs" and "Ohs." Beginning Sunday matinee, December 10, this burlesque speed demon will entertain the patrons of the Englewood theatre twice daily for one week. This attraction is in no sense a musical comedy, but strictly a burlesque show—a greater burlesque show—the kind you have always hankered after, but which no burlesque manager has ever offered. 16 principals, 24 beautiful chorus girls, a "book" something heretofore unknown to this class of entertainment and specially composed music full of that lilting melody that sends you away whistling and singing lyrics from the pens of theatreloons most prolific authors. Scenically and in costuming it is the last word in the art of stagecraft, in fact it is the nonplus ultra of theatrical entertainment, but withal burlesque—good old fashioned burlesque for which let us all be thankful. A company of 40, a carload of scenery, a world of props and a special musical conductor are required to properly put over this "Barnum & Bailey" of the American burlesque circuit.

Among the principals are Max Fiehl, Sidney Rogers, Harry Keeler, George Betts, Roderick MacDonald, Dave Peyser, Brad Boston, Nat Hoffman, George Harrington, Walter Greaves, Laura Brunner, Ruth Everett, Anna Fink, Marie Elmer, Charlotte Turner, Nonie Reynolds and the chorus is made up of 24 of Broadway's most beautiful girls.

"The Call of a Nation" is the title of the sensational spectacular ballet, one of the many big scenes in "The Tempters." This scene is the most tremendous and lavish "number" ever put on in burlesque and Manager Charles Baker, who has the reputation of doing big things, has positively outdone himself. Scenery and costumes present a glittering and dazzling array and the music is of the kind that will set your blood a-tingling and make you shout for joy because you are an American. For bigness and class the remainder of the show is in keeping with this number as many novelties heretofore unknown to burlesque are introduced. With all it's bigness, beauty and splendor, "The Tempters" is strictly burlesque of the good old-fashioned kind and Manager Baker is to be complimented on giving lovers of this form of entertainment a rare treat. For the first time in the history of the Englewood theatre the management has seen fit to indorse an attraction and has placed his personal guarantee on "The Tempters" as being positively the largest and one of the best shows ever offered to a burlesque audience.

Marie Elmer, With "The Tempters" Next Week.

Chance for the Boys and Girls.

Every boy and girl wants a chance to make some extra money for the holidays, and we are offering them an opportunity to do so after school hours and on Saturdays. We are placing a number of subscription solicitors right in their own home districts and allowing them a very liberal commission by which they can easily make several dollars a day with little effort. Call early to get best territory. See Mr. Munns Englewood Times office, 417 West 63d St.

EMPRESS THEATRE

The holday season brings to the popular Empress theatre the best line of attractions at any time of the year. Many of the sketch and vaudeville people are "resting" at this time, and Manager Harry Mitchell being well known to them all, he gathers them in for short engagements at his house, giving Englewood audiences the benefit of the very best and leading attractions, which usually play only the larger houses in the "loop" district, at the Empress' bargain prices. The variety and scope of this house in the amusement line is noticeable, as the programs have a diversified character from song and dance to wonders and mysteries in skill and science, while their moving pictures are of the highest character and with absolutely the latest features. A winning card for the Empress is the daily matinee for ten cents. This is the popular time for women and children, and they certainly show that they appreciate it by the magnificent audiences they bring. Such a thing as a dollar show for a dime is what keeps other managers guessing how Mr. Mitchell does it. There are always two evening shows, and if you can't get there in time for the first, you have the second show; both are the same and absolutely no "cutting" is allowed at any performance. The matinees are the same as the night shows, and the programs change twice a week, so that no stale work is offered. The Empress is the best-heated and ventilated house in town, and the most comfortably seated, so that everything is done for the comfort and amusement of the audiences, and you are sure of a good time any afternoon or evening.

MUTT & JEFF

"Bud" Fisher's famous cartoon characters, "Mutt & Jeff," are appearing at the leading Englewood movie theatres and if you want to chase away the blues watch for the dates they appear and treat yourself and family to an afternoon or evening of good, wholesome, sides-splitting sport. It will go a long way toward shaping your next day's activities.

NATIONAL THEATRE

With a selected Broadway cast and with costly scenic embellishments "The Girl He Couldn't Buy," a four-act comedy-melodrama from the pen of Sumner Nichols, will be presented here at the National week of December 10. The play will star Miss Mabelle Estelle, who has won great popularity in stock in New York city and elsewhere, and has also scored in such dramatic successes as "The Wolf" and "Pierre of the Plains."

Miss Estelle will appear in the appealing character of Hope Nelson, a girl brought up in refinement and luxury who is suddenly reduced to penury by the death of her father. His unscrupulous partner, who brought him to financial ruin and thereby enriched himself, seeks her out in her new humble lodgings, and attempts by threats and promises to rob her of her innocence. When she refuses to listen to him he tells her he has prevailed upon her employer to discharge her and attempts to turn her out into the streets.

Her landlady, knowing her misfortune and her good character, comes to her rescue, but she does not daunt her persecutor, who tells her he will yet get her into his power. In her apparent helplessness, there appears an unexpected protector in the person of a youth of naturally good instincts, who has taken to burglary as a livelihood after being convicted of a crime he did not commit. Affection springs up between them and they plan a bold stroke to deliver her from the snare that is spread for her and to force restitution from the man who robbed her father. The difficulties and dangers they encounter and the manner in which they finally succeed in the execution of their plan furnish a series of most thrilling incidents including a burglary and a dual capture.

In spite of its dramatic intensity, the play fairly scintillates with comedy. It is unique as a combination of fun and thrills. The characters are all cleverly drawn and sharply contrasted, and what is of utmost importance entrusted to capable actors for characterization.

E. A. R. THEATRE

The E. A. R. is essentially the neighborhood house for ladies and children, and every effort is made to make their visits to this pretty house most enjoyable. Its cleanliness, superior ventilation and absolute good order is strong in its favor and the entertaining feature is the music on the big pipe organ by that prince of organists Robert Stronach, who has few equals and no superiors in the city.

Friday, December 8—Matinee 2 to 6, evening 7 to 11 p. m. Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne in Romeo and Juliet, eight reels. Produced at a cost of $250,000, with a cast of 600 chosen players.

Saturday, December 9—Matinee and evening, Viola Dana in "Gates of Eden," five-reel Metro play. "She Loved a Sailor," two-reel Keystone.

Sunday, December 10—2 to 11 p. m., Lillian Gish in "Diana of Follies," five-reel Triangle play. "Dollars and Sense," two-reel Keystone.

Monday, December 11—7 to 11 p. m., Alice Brady in "Bought and Paid For," five reels. "Her Sun-Kissed Hero," Cub comedy.

Tuesday, Dec. 12—7 to 11 p. m., Dorothy Dalton and Charles Hickman in "The Jungle Child," five-reel Triangle. Pathe News.

Wednesday and Thursday, December 13 and 14—Matinee 2 to 6, evening 7 to 11 p. m., Mary Pickford in "Less Than the Dust," seven reels. First photoplay made by her own company.

Mary Pickford as an independent star has completed her first picture, "Less Than Dust," an intensely human story by Hector Turnbull. In spite of long days of rehearsals and work before the camera, and long nights of hard study, the young star declares that she was never more happy. Never has she had such a satisfactory role, and she promises a characterization that will be the result of the blending of her magnetic personality, successful experience and ability to extract from part all that is sweet and clean and adorable. To make the picture complete, the famous star has surrounded herself with a distinguished supporting company of high and evenly balanced merit. Among the more prominent of the cast of nearly 50 principals are David Powell, Frank Losee, Mary Alden, Marie Majeroni, Cesare Carvina and Mercita Esmonde.

Scene From "Less Than the Dust," With Mary Pickford as the Star.

Miss Pickford is enthusiastic over the future of the motion picture art industry along the new lines laid down, which is a startling departure from the traditions of the films. The spontaneous response of the public proves that Mary Pickford has keen judgment when she decides to cut adrift from the anchor that held her fast to tradition and embark on what might be termed a sea of artistic freedom.

Friday, December 15—Charles Chaplin in "The Rink," also Mme. Petrova in "Extravagance."

Saturday—Douglas Fairbanks in "Manhattan Madness."

John Probst, who died at the home of his uncle, 2011 63rd St. last Saturday, was buried Wednesday at Mt. Hope cemetery with Masonic honors. He was twenty-five years of age and the son of Mrs. Katherine Probst.

A good solicitor may make good salary and have steady position by applying to Mr. Munns, 417 W. 63d St.

"The Everwells" are having some interesting bits of advice to offer in the ads of Stuckey Prescription Drug store in this and future issues of the Times. Read them and watch for and follow each one.

Our new serial, "K," is one of the best of the year and our readers will surely enjoy it. Don't miss the opening chapters.

If the people west of Halsted St. want a station on the "L" road at Morgan St., now is the time to agitate for it, as another aldermanic election will occur in the spring, and more interest is now taken in public work.

The Guarantee Trust and Savings bank at 63rd and Green Sts. will start their Christmas Savings clubs on Monday, December 18, and there will be classes for all ages and amounts. Call and let them explain.

Harry Artman who died at his home, 6416 Loomis St. last Sunday, was buried Wednesday at Mt. Hope cemetery. He was twenty-five years of age and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Artman. Services were held at the Ashland Christian church.

Give one of your friends a year's subscription to the Englewood Times as a Christmas gift. It will surely please them.

The Sherman Park Woman's club is now making plans for its Christmas program. Mrs. E. J. Sipay is in charge, and assisting her are Mrs. Mary E. Taylor, Mrs. J. J. Keefe and Mrs. E. Van der Heide.

Hereafter all holders of cards in the Public library may draw five instead of one book on each card. This does not apply to the seven-day, or newer books.

Rev. Fr. John J. Kearns, who was connected with Presentation church for 17 years, is now centering all his interests in the new St. Theodore's church, of which he has recently been appointed pastor. The bazaar given at Lipman's hall, 64th St. and Ashland Ave., for this church was a financial and social success.

Anything wanted in the music line at the very lowest price. Drop in and look over their stock for either popular or classical music. The Music Shop, 723 W. 63d St., opposite Englewood theatre.

There are a great number of fake charity workers at this season of the year, and we advise our readers not to be taken in by them. Be sure that you know where your charity donations go. There are many deserving organizations and individuals and the professional beggar and deadbeat should be passed by.

Sherman Park was the scene of a gay dancing party on Thanksgiving eve. It was held under the auspices of the Carnation Girls. Those on the reception committee included May Lyons, Mabel Reichert, Lucille Swanson, Anna Walsh, Elizabeth Cosley, May Doody, Grace Flory and Marie Macker.

Miss Edna Casper of 6909 South Robey St. met with a very painful accident Monday while using the electric machine, the wringer catching her fingers, crushing them between the rollers. Doctor Bell was immediately summoned and medical aid was rendered in time to prevent any serious results.

Under the auspices of the Mathesis club at Hatfield theatre, Halsted St., near Garfield Blvd., a benefit performances was given December 6 by courtesy of Mr. Swartz, proprietor. Mrs. F. V. Johnson was chairman of the committee. The entire proceeds of the entertainment will go to the club funds.

The newly elected officials in the county building took their places Monday and when the political grab hook gets in it's fatal work, quite a number of changes will be made in the clerkships and other employees. We have a large number trembling in their boots for fear of the raid, and still more anxiously waiting to get a chance at the graft.

Mr. and Mrs. John Hansen of 1424 73rd Pl. celebrated their eighteenth wedding anniversary Sunday, December 3. They had a very enjoyable time. Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. William Simons Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Crump, Mr. and Mrs. J. Parrol, Mr. and Mrs. P. Thompson, Miss Madaline Thompson, Mr. J. E. Gallistel, Mr. J. Allen, Mr. C. E. —

Mrs. Anna Stepanek, the originator of an exclusive corset shop in Englewood, at 6715 and 6717 Halsted St., has an attractive ad in this week's issue announcing many Christmas gift suggestions. It will be a wise reader who takes heed.

Every week we receive local items too late for publication and are blamed for their failure to appear in our columns. We must have all "copy" in by Wednesday night. Please remember.

Mrs. Ole C. Jensen of 6909 South Robey St. died December 4 at the age of eighty-three years. Mrs. Jensen leaves a husband and two sons to mourn the loss of a devoted wife and loving mother. Funeral Thursday, December 6, from the First Danish Baptist church.

The card party held last Saturday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Groscupp, 7301 Sangamon St., by Violet Mission, No. 1, Daughters of Gray, was a decided success. The daughters are giving a series of parties and entertainments this winter for the purpose of helping poor children. We are proud to say that Violet Mission, No. 1, Daughters of Gray, is an auxiliary to the First Spiritual Church Mission society which holds its services in Odd Fellows' Temple, 6316 Yale Ave., every Sunday.

Englewood Free Forum.

The enthusiasm manifested by those who attended the previous meetings of this forum demonstrates the edifying power of the message that through this medium can be brought before the people of this community.

While lectures upon political questions are usually fraught with thought-inspiring material, informal discussions, in which all who feel so inclined may participate, produce an unexemplified and animated interest that has for everyone present mutual profit.

Recently the eight-hour law was carefully considered, and now there is scheduled for the next two weeks several formal debates between Mr John T. Vaughan, conductor and lecturer, and able speakers whose opinions are frequently quoted in the public press. Friday, December 8, at 8 p. m. Mr. John T. Vaughan will take the affirmative side, while Mr. F. M. Witkoskurt, "Sirfessor of Supurology" takes the negative side in a debate upon the subject "Socialist Control will promote the public welfare," to be held in Marquette hall, 6651 S. Halsted St.

The Tsigane Club.

The regular monthly hiking meeting left Blanche Stonebraker's home at 3 p. m. Sunday. Hamilton park was the destination. At their return dinner was found on the table served by our "ornery" (honorary) members, Mrs. Jones and Mrs. Wilkins.

After dinner someone suggested charades and Mr. Wilkins, Sr., and Mr. Jones declared that it was too deep for them and escaped to a picture show. In the meantime the rest of the party had their intellectual feast, enjoyed it and went home. Some of the girls were complaining of blisters and sore heels as the result of trying to be stylish instead of comfortable as to shoes. Perhaps they'll know better next time. Charles Terriere is our next host.

How Nature Protects Orchids.

Orchids are the most skilled of all plants in the art of simulation. They choose for imitation some insect, bird or animal free from danger. Some orchids imitate poisonous spiders. The fly orchid and the bee orchid are examples which imitate so skillfully that trained scientists are often at fault in detecting the deception. These orchids resemble clusters of bees or flies resting on a dry twig.

Mr. and Mrs. Baker, whose home is in South Dakota have been visiting in St. Paul for a few days, and arrived in Chicago Monday, December 4, and are now visiting at the home of their daughter, Mrs. Paul Kocker, 7252 S. Maplewood Ave. and will remain until after the holidays.

Christmas Clubs Teach People to Save.

Chicagoans put $1,000,000 into their own Christmas stockings this year through the medium of Christmas Savings clubs. A dozen of the city's banking institutions, which have introduced this system of saving throughout the year toward a holiday fund, report the carrying of more than 36,000 such accounts and are enthusiastic in their indorsement of the scheme. The United State bank announces their intention of taking it up during the coming year. Other bankers declare that the clubs are a great developer of the saving habit and predict that fully a third of the Christmas accounts will be turned over to permanent savings bank funds. The general plan of the savings clubs is the same in all of the banks. It calls for a 50-week season with a certain deposit each week. There is a wide range in the classification of deposits. The lowest calls for an initial deposit of 1 cent with 1 cent added each week, the final payment being 50 cents, and the total fund accumulated $12.75. A straight weekly deposit of $2 constitutes the top class. Interest at 3 per cent is allowed on the savings.

"We anticipate that our Christmas Savings club will become a very important department with us," said Mr. Heck of the United State bank. "As a starter for permanent savings accounts it is a great thing. Our 1917 club opens December 18 and we are making quite a campaign and expect a big membership. We will undoubtedly have to enlarge this department considerably to handle the crowd. It is a new idea to the public to be able to save in small amounts and they like the plan. One man explained that he had never saved a penny in 23 years, but that this idea had interested him and given him a start. Many parents carry accounts for their children in the smaller amounts. The 'decreasing' class of deposit is one of the favorite methods. It calls for an initial deposit of $2 and a deposit of 5 cents less for each succeeding week."

OUR WANT COLUMN

Is the best medium of reaching people in the South part of the city, and our rate of one cent a word is exceptionally low, but we must insist that all such ads be paid for in advance and either brought to the office or sent by mail as we cannot afford to make bills and send collectors for same. This applies to everyone whether you are a friend to the editor or office boy, and we will positively make no exceptions, so please do not kick if your request to violate this rule is refused.

Englewood High School Notes

Tryouts for the girls' basket ball team took place Thursday after school. A good lineup is expected.

The next Englehooster dance will be given on Friday of this week at Odd Fellows' hall. Time, 3:25 to 5:25 p. m.

A party for the entire senior class was held Thursday after school. Arrangements were made by Miss Josephine Allin, the dean.

Englewood will meet Crane Saturday afternoon at 2:30, at Stagg field, to play the final game for the football championship of the city.

The Physics Captain ball team is again the school champion. Last Tuesday, in the most evenly matched game of the season, they won from the Outlaws with a score of 18 to 16.

The Parent-Teacher association of Englewood held its December meeting on Thursday evening in the school. The meeting was scheduled for the evening, so as to enable the fathers of students to attend.

On Wednesday afternoon, in Junior hall, an interesting lecture was given by W. H. Collins of the Commonwealth Edison company, on the subject, "Electricity and the Illumination of the San Francisco World's Fair."

Last Friday evening, in the Junior hall of the school the Englewood high school alumni gave a reception in honor of Principal Armstrong in recognition of his 25 years of service in this school. He was presented with a watch during the exercises by the alumni of the school.

The school play, "Quality Street," written by James Barry, is coming along in excellent shape and will be produced in Junior hall on December 14 and 15. The performance of the 14th will be given in the afternoon and the performance of the 15th will be given in the evening. Tickets for the matinee will be 25 cents and for the evening performance 50, 35 and 25 cents.

Where She Came In.

"If I had twenty dollars I would buy more things than this house could hold," said Tommy. "I wouldn't," said Albert. "I would buy—" and, looking at his little sister, continued, "a diamond ring for Mollie." Mollie, suspicious of such generosity, declared: "I would not have your diamond ring, but you'd better pay the nickel you owe me."—Exchange.

LINDEN PHOTODROME

The Linden! Your Photo-Play House.

Friday, Dec. 8—Hobart Henley in "The Sign of the Poppy," a great mystery story of mistaken identity with the sinister atmosphere of Chinatown and the revenge of the Tongs. See Mr. Henley play a double role, that of a gentleman and a dope fiend. Also Alice Howel in "Tattle-Tale Alice," and Lois Weber and Phillip Smalley in "The Children Shall Pay."

Saturday, Dec. 9—Valeska Suratt in "Jealousy." "Hell Hath No Fury Like a Woman Scorned." Miss Suratt plays the part of a heartless woman who marries a man she does not love and then proceeds to neglect him. In the end the husband discovers his wife's deceit—but to learn the rest of this five-reel feature photoplay see it; also "Mutt and Jeff" and "The Animated Weekly."

Mary Pickford, the Little Screen Favorite, in "Less Than the Dust," Monday and Tuesday, Matinee and Evening, December 11 and 12.

Sunday, Dec. 10—"Big Tremaine," starring Harold Lockwood and May Allison. Here is a play that deals interestingly and intelligently with these great human elements—love, family ties, money and politics. If your brother robbed you of love and money what would you do? If your mother wrongly believed you a thief would you suffer in silence? See "Big John Tremaine." Here is a motion picture of supreme power in five parts. Also a side-splitting L-Ko comedy in two parts. A great show.

Monday and Tuesday, Dec. 11 and 12—Mary Pickford, acclaimed supreme in her new picture, "Less Than the Dust." This is the first photoplay made by the popular young star's own company. The leading character is that of a poor little waif born of English parents, but abandoned in India, where she is adopted by a sword maker of low caste. How she is saved by an English officer and in turn rescues him from death and then she goes to England and discovers she is of gentle birth. How, most interesting of all a romance develops and she finds happiness after so much sorrow form a narrative that constantly claims the attention of the spectator and furnishes innumerable thrills. Miss Pickford is as charming as ever and has surrounded herself with a competent company.

Wednesday, Dec. 13—Mary Nash in "Arms and the Woman," a picture that will hold the interest of everyone. It is thoroughly American. It is a vivid tale on a timely topic picturing the hearts and homes touched by the lengthening shadows of war clouds with a vibrant love note sustained throughout. What would you do in her place? Imagine a young girl, born in one of the warring countries married to a man engaged in the manufacture of munitions destined for use against her motherland. Mary Nash is such a girl in "Arms and the Woman." You must see it. Also "Hans and Fritz" in their funny capers, and a great comedy.

Thursday, Dec. 14—Mae Marsh and Robert Harron in "The Wharf Rat." All of Mae Marsh's alluring qualities, her cleverness and humanness are combined in this her best attempt at playing the boy. She disguises herself in boy's clothing to shield her grandpa from the long arm of the law and the story built around this situation is one of combined action, suspense and real live people. Also there's a riot of Keystone fun in two parts. Just laughs.

At the Harvard Photo Playhouse. The best people in Englewood patronize the Harvard theatre. It is their logical home for clean and elevating amusement. Ask any regular patron for an opinion as to how the Harvard compares with other theatres.

Friday, Dec. 8; children 5c, adults 10c—Direct from the loop—Vitagraph presents William Duncan and Mary Anderson in the Vitagraph Blue Ribbon feature, "The Last Man," a thrilling masterful drama in five parts, written by James Oliver Curwood. Vibrant with the spirit of the great outdoors, alive with big moments, James Oliver Curwood's pen never presented a more fascinating picture of beauty. Also a scream comedy and travel pictures.

Saturday, Dec. 9; matinee 2 to 5:30 p. m., evening 6:20 to 11 p. m.—Metro Pictures offer the star magnificent, Mme. Petrova, in a wonderful society drama of supreme power, "Extravagance," in five parts. The besetting sin of today is extravagance. Are you extravagant? Are your expenses greater than your income? All these questions are strikingly answered in this play. Also a scream two-part Keystone comedy. A show you can't afford to miss.

Sunday, Dec. 10, continuous 2 to 11 p. m.; matinee 5c and 10c, evening 10c and 15c. Triangle plays offer Douglas Fairbanks, the great, in his greatest screen success, "American Aristocracy," a novel drama with plenty of comedy to add to its zest of thrills. It is a society play and we sincerely recommend it as a great production. Greater than "Manhattan Madness." Also the latest Keystone comedy.

DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS IN TRIANGLE-FINE ARTS PLAY, "AMERICAN ARISTOCRACY."

AT THE HARVARD, SUNDAY, DECEMBER 10.

Monday, Dec. 11—Carlyle Blackwell and Ethel Clayton in an exceptionally strong play "The Madness of Helen," a great story with an unexpected ending. The two stars have many very successful plays to their credit, but this one is really their masterpiece. Also Earl William in a new Vitagraph feature.

Tuesday, Dec. 12—Lillian Walker and an all-star cast in the Vitagraph Blue Ribbon feature, "The Blue Envelope Mystery," a society drama in five parts, beautifully conceived and effectively produced. Full of mystery and pathos. Also Burton Holmes travel pictures and Frank Daniels in a new comedy.

Wednesday, Dec. 13, matinee and evening—Frank Keenan and Enid Markey in "Jim Grimsby's Boy." Do you like a gripping story about rough and rugged mountaineers—a thrilling tale of life in the gold country?

Frank Keenan, one of the greatest character actors on the screen, and Enid Markey are the stars of the new Triangle play, "Jim Grimsby's Boy"—a picture that is bigger and stronger than ever.

Seldom has there been a story so thoroughly interesting—so well told and so well acted. You'll enjoy every minute of it. Also a scream Keystone comedy.

Thursday, Dec. 14—Bessie Barriscale, with Charles Ray, in "A Corner in Colleens." This is a story of a young American millionaire who falls in love with a tomboy Irish lass. The comedy and dramatic incidents of the story take place during the recent Sinn Fein rebellion in Dublin. The little tomboy has many reasons to hate the man in love with her, and eventually she is the means of saving him from imprisonment and death. The action moves along rapidly and the scenes are replete with incidents of timely interest. Also Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew in a new comedy.

Musical Art Society Concert.

The Musical Art Society of Chicago will give a concert at the Central Music hall, Tuesday December 12 at 8:30 p. m. An excellent program has been prepared under the direction of Herbert T. Hyde, conductor, and much interest has been created for its success.

INDIAN NAMES FOR WARSHIPS

Suggestion Made That Vessels of the United States Navy Be Called After Famous Red Men.

A correspondent of the New York Times advocates Indian names for United States warships. "How to name the ships of our vastly extended navy is an interesting question. A glance down the list of the names of our naval ships does undoubtedly give the impression that 'they had been accepted by a weary man as a choice of evils.'

"It seems to me that from the men of the race longest identified with our history—the noble red men—and from their tribes, most befitting titles could be found for applying to our warships. From early childhood the lives of the foremost Indian chieftains have inspired intense admiration in Americans. They are the ideal embodiment of the greatest naval battle prowess of their time.

"What names could imply the idea of indomitable fighting force in the American mind equally with Powhatan, the powerful sachem of Virginia; or Pontiac, "the Red Napoleon," chief of the Ottawas; or Tecumseh, chief of the Shawnees, or (Shawanoes) and celebrated fighter, diplomat, and orator; or Black Hawk, noted warrior chieftain of the Sacs and Foxes?"

Clear Explanation.

"Here's a reason given why Germany is not so much affected by the blockade!"

"What is it?"

"The chemists provided the people with sympathetic foods."

"There's a Reason"

As the busy autumn days came upon us, Twin Fires took on a new aspect, and one to us greenhorns indescribably thrilling. In the first place, our field of corn rustled perpetually as we walked past it, and down in the greenish-golden lanes beneath we could see the orange gleam of pungkins (I shall so spell the word lest it be mispronounced by the ignorant). Great ears of the Stowell's evergreen were ripe, for Mike's prediction about the early frost had not come true, and we ate the succulent food clean to the cob every day at dinner, besides selling many dozens of ears to the market. In the long light of afternoon, Stella loved to go along the path by the hayfield wall and then turn in amid the corn, losing sight at once of all the universe and wandering in a new world of rustling leaves. She felt, she said, just as Alice must have felt after she had eaten the cake; and once a rabbit bounded across her foot, to her unspeakable delight. She looked to see if he had dropped his gloves!

Then there was the potato field. We were eating our own new potatoes now. Often Stella dug them.

"It seems so funny to go and dig up a potato," she declared. "I've always felt that potatoes just were. But to see the whole process of growth is quite another matter. Oh, John, it makes them so much nicer!"

"Especially when you are getting seventy-five cents a bushel for them," I laughed.

The loaded tomato vines, too, with the red fruit hanging out from the wire frames and sending a pungent odor into the surrounding air, appealed to Stella endlessly. I used to see her now and then, as I glanced from the south room of a morning, eating a raw tomato like an apple, her head bent forward so that the juice would not spoil her dress.

And there were the apples! Already a red astrachan tree invited us on every trip to the brook, and other old trees were bearing fast-reddening fruit. I had wanted to set out more orchard, but we agreed that we could not afford it that year, if we were to build chicken houses against the spring, so I reluctantly gave up the idea. But our old trees, in spite of (or perhaps because of) my spring pruning, were doing fairly well. We had enough for baked apples and cream all winter, anyhow, Stella reckoned, smacking her lips at the thought.

Every day, on our way to the pool, one or the other of us took a hoe along and scraped a tree for five minutes, gradually getting the old bark off, and making a final preparation for a thorough spraying the next winter just so much easier. I used to prune a bit, too, in spare moments, so that by the end of the summer considerable renovation had been accomplished.

And now came the foxglove transplanting. According to the gardener's directions, we took two long rows where the early peas had stood (and where Mike had disobeyed my instructions to spade the vines under, that being a form of green manuring your old-time gardener will not see the value of, I have discovered), trenched them, put in manure and soil, and set out at least three hundred foxglove plants six inches apart. It was a cool, cloudy day, and they stood up as though nothing had happened. Then, as an experiment, we moved scores of tiny hollyhocks from the crowded seed-beds into their permanent position as a screen between the south kitchen windows and the sundial lawn, and as a border on the west side of the same lawn. They, too, were quite unaffected by the change.

Meanwhile, we ordered our bulbs—hyacinths, daffodils (which in our climate refuse to take the winds of March with beauty, cowardly waiting till May), a few crocuses, Narcissus poeticus, Empress narcissus, German iris, Japanese iris and Darwin tulips. We ordered the iris and tulips in named varieties.

"They have such nice names," said Stella, "especially the Japanese iris—Kimi-no-megumi, Shiratuki, Momo-chiguma! The tulips are nice, too. Here is Ariadne and Kate Greenaway hobnobbing with Professor Rauwenhoff! What's the use of having plants that aren't named? We must show them as much respect as Antony and Cleopatra, or Epictetus and Luella!"

We also experimented with lilies—lemon lilies for the shady north side of the house, tigers for the border beyond the pool, and two or three of the expensive Myriophyllums, just to show that we, too, could go in for the exotic, like our neighbors on the big estates.

When the bulbs came, in October, we looked at the boxes sadly.

"Whew!" said Stella, "you can't be lazy and have a garden, can you?"

"I don't work tomorrow, I guess," said I. "Shall we ask Mike's Joe to help us?"

"Never!" said my wife. "We'll put these bulbs in ourselves. If I had any help, I should feel like the Eckstroms, which God forbid!"

So the next day at seven-thirty we began. We ringed the pool with German and Japanese iris, alternated for succession, and planted a few Japanese both below and above the pool, close to the brook. We set the Narcissus poeticus bulbs where, if they grew, the flowers could look at themselves in the mirror below the dam. The Empress narcissus we placed on both sides of the pool just beyond the iris. On each side of the bench we placed a bulb of our precious Myriophyllums, and put the tigers into the borders close to the shrubbery on both sides. The hyacinths went into the sundial beds, the Darwins into the beds at the base of the rose aqueduct, a few crocuses into the sundial lawn, and the daffodils here and there all over the place, where the fancy struck us and the ground invited.

"Now, I'm going to label everything, and put it on a map besides," cried Stella, "except the daffodils. I want to forget where they are. I want surprises in the spring. Oh, John, do you suppose they'll come up?"

"Yes, I suppose they will," I laughed, "some of them. But do you suppose we'll ever get the kinks out of our backs?"

"I'm willing to go doubled up all the rest of my life for a garden of daffodils all my own," she cried.

And then my heart with pleasure thrills
And dances with the daffodils—

"It was very thoughtful of old Wordsworth, and Shakespeare, and Masefield, and all the rest to write nice things about daffodils, wasn't it, John? I wonder if gardens would be so wonderful if it weren't for all their literary suggestions, and the lovely things they remind you of? Gardens have so much atmosphere! Oh, spring, spring, hurry and come!"

I forgot my lame back in her enthusiasm, and later, when the apples were gathered, the potatoes dug, the beets and carrots in the root cellar, our own sweet cider foamed in a glass pitcher on our table, and the first snow spits of December whistled across the fields, we put a little long manure over the irises and other bulbs, and pine boughs over the remaining perennials, and wrapped the ramblers in straw, with almost as much laughing tenderness as you would put a child to bed.

The cows were back in the stable, and Mike had revised his opinion of cork-asphalt floors when he realized the ease of cleaning with a hose; the potatoes and apples and onions and beets and carrots for our family use were stored in barrels and bins in the cellar, or spread on shelves, or buried in sand. The vegetable garden was newly plowed, and manure spread on the hayfield. Antony and Cleopatra had been captured and brought into the dining room, where they were to spend the winter in a glass bowl. Epictetus and Luella and Gladys and Gaynor had all burrowed out of sight into the ground. The pageant of autumn on our hills was over, only an amethyst haze succeeding at sunset time. Wood fires sparkled in our twin hearths. The summer residents had departed. Our first Thanksgiving turkey had been eaten, though a great stone crock of Mrs. Pillig's incomparable mincemeat still yielded up its treasures for ambrosial pies.

"And now," said Stella, "I'm going to find out at last what a country winter is like!"

"And your friends are pitying you down in town," said I. "Don't you want to go back to them till spring?"

Stella looked at the fires, she looked out over the bare garden and the plowed fields to the dun hillsides, she listened a moment to the whistle of the bleak December wind, she looked at me.

In her eyes I read her answer.

CHAPTER XVIII.

Horas Non Numero Nisi Serenas.

But this story is, after all, an idyl, and the idyl is drawing to its close. Even as the Old Three Decker carried tired people to the Islands of the Blest, my little tale can only end with "and they lived happy ever after."

That second summer at Twin Fires, of course, showed us many things yet to be done. Neither Rome nor the humblest garden was ever built in a day. Our ramblers did their duty well, but the grape arbor and the pergola would not be covered properly in a season. There were holes in the flower beds to be filled by annuals, and mistakes made in succession, so that July found us with many patches destitute of any bloom. Out in the vegetable area there were first cutworms and then drought and potato blight to be contended with. In our ignorance we neglected to watch the hollyhocks for red rust till suddenly whole plants began to die, and we had to spray madly with bordeaux and pull off a great heap of infected leaves, to save any blooms at all. There were clearings to be made in the pines for ferny spots, and constant work to be done about the pool to keep the wild bushes from coming back. There were chickens to be looked after now, also, and new responsibilities in the village for both of us. We had neither attempted nor desired to avoid our full share of civic work. We lived a busy life, with not an hour in the day idle, and few hours in the evening. We lived so full a life, indeed, that it was only by preserving an absolute routine for my own bread-winning labors, from 9 a. m till one, that I was able to resist the siren call of farm and garden, and get my daily stint accomplished.

The preceding summer I had made about two hundred dollars out of my produce, which in my first naive enthusiasm pleased me greatly. But it was surely a poor return on my investment, reckoned, merely in dollars and cents, and the second season showed a different result. Having two cows and a small family, I managed to dispose of my surplus milk and cream to a farmer who ran a milk route. This brought me in $73 a year. As I further saved at least $100 by not having to buy milk, and $60 by Peter's efforts at the churn, and could reckon a further profit from manure and calves, my cows were worth between three hundred and four hundred dollars a year to me. Now that we had hens and chickens, we could reckon on another $100 saved in egg and poultry bills. To this total I was able to add at the end of the summer more than five hundred dollars received from the sale of fruit and vegetables, not only to the market but to the hotels. I was the only person in Bentford who had cultivated raspberries for sale, for instance, and the fact that I could deliver them absolutely fresh to the hotels was appreciated in so delicate a fruit. Stella and Peter were the pickers. I also supplied the inns with peas, cauliflowers and tomatoes. Thus the farm was actually paying me in cash or saving at least a thousand dollars a year—indeed, much more, since we had no fruit nor vegetable bills the year through, Mrs. Pillig being an artist in preserving what would not keep in the cellar. But we will call it a thousand dollars, and let the rest go as interest on the investment represented by seeds and implements. To offset this, I paid Mike $600 a year, and employed his son Joe at $1.75 a day for twenty weeks. This left me a profit of about two hundred dollars on my first full season at Twin Fires, which paid my taxes and bought my coal. Out of my salary, then, came no rent, no bills for butter, eggs, milk, poultry nor vegetables. I had to pay Mrs. Pillig her $20 a month therefrom, I had to pay the upkeep of the place, and grocery and meat bills (the latter being comparatively small in summer). But with the great item of rent eliminated, and my farm help paying for itself, it was astonishing to me to contemplate what a beautiful, comfortable home we were able to afford on an income which in New York would coop us in an upper West side apartment. We had thirty acres of beautiful land, we had a brook, a pine grove, an orchard, a not too formal garden, a lovely house, in which we were slowly assembling mahogany furniture which fitted it. We had summer society as sophisticated as we cared to mix with, and winter society to which we could give gladly of our own stores of knowledge or enthusiasm and find joy in the giving. We had health as never before, and air and sunshine and a world of beauty all about us to the far, blue wall of hills.

Above all, we had the perpetual incentive of gardening to keep our eyes toward the future. A true garden, like a life well lived, is forever becoming, forever in process, forever leading on toward new goals. Life, indeed goes hand in hand with your garden, and never a fair thought but you write it in flowers, never a beautiful picture but you paint it if you can, and with the striving learn patience, and with the half accomplishment the "divine unrest."

reads the ancient motto on our dial plate, and as I look back on the years of Twin Fires' genesis, or forward into the future, the hours that are not sunny are indeed not marked for me. I am writing now at a table beneath the pergola. The floor is of brick, laid (somewhat irregularly) by Stella and me, for we still are poor, as the Eckstroms would reckon poverty, and none of what Mrs. Deland has called "the grim inhibitions of wealth" prevents us from doing whatever we can with our own hands, and finding therein a double satisfaction. Over my head rustle the thick vines—a wistaria among them, which may or may not survive another winter.

It is June again. I know that a path now wanders up the brook almost to the road, amid the wild tangle, and ends suddenly in the most unexpected nook beneath a willow tree where irises fringe a second tiny pool. I know that the path still wanders the other way into the pines—pines larger now and more murmurous of the sea—past beds of ferns and a lone cardinal flower that will bloom in a shaft of sunlight. Somewhere down that path my wife is wandering, and she is not alone. A little form (at least she says it has form!) sleeps beside her, while she sits, perhaps, with a book, or more likely with sewing in her busy fingers, or more likely still with hands that stray toward the sleeping child and ears that listen to the seashell murmur of the pines whispering secrets of the future. Is he to be a Napoleon or a Pasteur? No less a genius, surely, the prophetic pines whisper to the listening mother!

My own pen halts in its progress and the ink dries on the point. And hark, from the pines a tiny cry! Can he want his father?

MINE HAS PECULIAR VALUE

Great Variety of Most Useful Products Taken From the Ground in Verdite, South Africa.

Situated in the beautiful Kaap valley, in the Jamestown district of Barberton, Transvaal, there is a mine known by the name of Verdite. The name was given to it on account of the peculiar greenstone found in the mine, which is unknown in any other part of the globe. Articles of jewelry and ornaments are made of verdite, and it has been called the lucky greenstone of South Africa. This greenstone is a silicate of magnesia, or talc, colored green by nature in the course of its formation. Other silicates of magnesia may be mentioned here; peridote, serpentine, meerschaum and steatite. The mine, or, rather, hill, consists of three varieties of talc, green, white and black. But a peculiar fact is that in the black talc there is present pure gold. Some of the finest specimens of gold-bearing rock have been found at this mine. Everyone knows that gold is found in quartz, pyrites, or even in sea water, but scarcely ever has it been mentioned in books that gold exists in talc. When the verdite rock has gone through the ordinary process of crushing and the gold has been extracted, the waste (or what is called the slimes from a gold mine) is used in the manufacture of soap, grease, paint, paper, toilet powders, gas jets, electric insulators, crayons and many other articles of everyday use. In fact, one might say that everything got from this mine can be used for some commercial purpose.

Adding to French Wealth.

Sixty families of the Maisons Alfort suburb of Paris have received assignments of uncultivated land for planting potatoes and other vegetables, the action being under a decree by the French minister of agriculture. This is the first practical application of the measures adopted for the utilization of all previously uncultivated lands.

Uric Acid Poisoning?

The most eminent physicians recognize that uric acid stored up in the system is the cause of rheumatism, that this uric acid poison is present in the joints, muscles, or nerves. By experimenting and analysis at the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute in Buffalo, N. Y., Dr. Pierce discovered a combination of native remedies that he called Anuric—which drives out the uric acid from the system, and in this way the pain, swelling and inflammation subside. If you are a sufferer from rheumatism, backache, pains here or there, you can obtain Anuric at any drug store and get relief from the pains and ills brought about by uric acid; or send Dr. Pierce 10c for trial pkg. Anuric which you will find many times more potent than lithia and eliminates uric acid as hot water melts sugar. A short trial will convince you.

JUST MATTER OF PERCENTAGE

Legislator Had Figured Out Method by Which He Voted Right in Majority of Cases.

During the last session of a western legislature one member, a tall angular man with a white mustache of the walrus pattern and the faculty of being able to throw both his thumbs out of joint at will, made himself conspicuous by voting "No" on every bill, resolution, or other form of business that came up. However innocent a measure might be, this man voted against it stentoriously.

Finally a legislator weaken under the strain and approached the gentleman with the walrus whisker.

"Why is it?" asked the man, "that you vote 'No' on everything?"

"I'll tell you," said he of the walrus mustache with a confidential air. "Seventy-five of these bills and resolutions are bad and ought never to passed. And I figger that any man who votes right 75 per cent of the time is a pretty durned good legislator."

Teaching and Learning.

There is more than a verbal difference between "learn" and "teach." There is a vital difference. Education comes by learning, not by teaching. And what is learning? It is the experience of the spirit. We learn by doing, is an old saying, and it is true. It is the only way to learn. One can teach till doomsday and not make a scholar, a real man, a true citizen out of a boy. Teach is a misnomer in the truth of education. Such a one is a guide, a friend, a leader. Telling a child a fact should be undertaken with great caution, for when the child loses the relation, he loses the truth. Education is really absorption and the duty of the teacher is to put the child where the absorption proceeds. This may not be professional, but it is to be commended because it isn't.

Twilight of the Gods.

At the base of the vast structure so patiently reared by Herbert Spencer the mists are already dense, though not as obscuring as the clouds at the mausoleum of Comte. That great charmless woman, George Eliot, smiles the smile of somber ennui before the Spencer tomb, and the inevitable voice of Ernest Haeckel is heard whispering: "Where is your Positivism? Where is your Rationalism? What has become of your gaseous invertebrate god?" Surely there is sadly required in the cynical universities of the world a chair of irony with subtile Edgar Saltus as its first incumbent.—James Huneker in New York Sun.

Needles Made of Bone.

The needle is one of the very old domestic instruments. The earliest were probably of bone. Steel needles, close upon the modern style, were made by the Moors at a very early period, and there is a record of their introduction into England in the fourteenth century that the needle-making industry became quite an important one in England, and companies were formed for making them. Needles made of fish bone, bone of other animals and also of ivory, sometimes having an eye at one end and sometimes having an eye in the middle, have been found among the refuse of the cave-dwelling peoples of Europe. The machinery now employed in making needles of the many kinds used in sewing is quite as wonderful as the machinery used in making the pins that the world uses so recklessly.—Washington Star.

Surface Judgments.

President T. V. O'Connor of the International Longshoremen was talking to a reporter about a labor dispute.

"You are judging too much by surface conditions," he said. "Judging a labor dispute by surface indications is as bad as judging a man by his clothes—and, as to that, an aviator just back from France told me the other day: 'The handsomest uniforms and richest medals are always to be found furthest back from the firing line.'"

Gerald F. Sullivan

Englewood Women's Club Monday Meeting.

Olin Mason Caward to Speak Monday—Sociology Meeting at Morning Session—Professor Terry's Closing Lecture Enjoyed—Mrs. Parker's Paper on "Mohammedanism" Read at Morning Class.

The last morning study class of the literary department was called Monday, Mrs. Leigh in the chair. Reports were heard. Mrs. Mears, leader, introduced Mrs. J. W. Parker, who read the final paper of the series, "Christianity and Mohammedanism." This belief has claimed many millions, and teaches ideals similar in many instances to Christianity—a belief in one God, of whom Mohammed is the prophet; Adam, Noah, Abraham, Moses and Jesus, also prophets. Charity, liberality, prayer and fasting are practiced assiduously by its followers. Conversion, which was largely a matter of force, has lately been made peaceably, but still extensively. The unbeliever of Islam has no redemption, nor is the same friendly attitude held toward him that Christian sects extend to those differing in faith. This is a religion of the Orient. Persia, Turkey, Russia, Afghanistan, Arabia, Tartary, India and even in China are found many devoted followers of the prophet. Discussion by the members followed the paper.

Afternoon, following business, the club chorus appeared, under the direction of Miss Fitch, and gave a group of three songs, excellent in melody, interpretation and text. Prof. Arthur G. Terry, historian, gave the second of his lectures on the French revolution, this time considering the influence it has had in furthering democracy. According to Mr. Terry, although the revolution was associated with many horrible and unjustifiable events, it has had its effect in many countries on beneficent reforms. Through the example of the French, the victories which an undisciplined mass army achieved over the highest military training of other armies (due not exclusively to merit, however), other nations demanded and achieved voice in their government. In France, Norway, Switzerland, England, Portugal and Belgium popular representation is now practiced. Even in Russia and Germany, autocratic in conduct, representation is allowed, though it has not yet the power exerted by the civic equality of the peoples of the former nations.

Upon motion of Mrs. Emerson, appreciation of these two splendid lectures was expressed to Mr. Terry.

The program for Monday morning next is in charge of the sociology department. Mrs. Gertrude Howe Britton will tell of the Cook county social service bureau. Mrs. Clark will report on the woman's shelter, Mrs. Kalk on the farm colony for boys. Afternoon, Olin Mason Caward will speak to "Christianity's Task in the World's Religious Development." This will supplement the course of study the club has been pursuing in its literature department.

Tuesday afternoon, the French salon will meet with Mrs. Barbee, 6643 Harvard Ave.

Changes in the program as printed in the calendar were announced as follows: January 8, the Fuller sisters' engagement will be postponed to February 26. January 29 Rev. Robert Woods Van Kirk will present his Browning recital instead of March 5, as published. March 5, a play by club members, in charge of Mrs. Bannister and a capable director, will be attempted.

The Junior party of Friday evening last, with Mrs. Martin Edinger as chairman, was a most successful affair, well-attended and thoroughly enjoyed by the young guests. Mrs. O. E. Robinson was responsible for the very pretty function at which the little folk frolicked in the afternoon. About two hundred and fifty young people were present. Mr. Herbert Roberts and Miss Charlee Du Plan led the march, assisted by Miss Mabel Reynolds and Wm. Braunstoll. The patrons and patronesses were Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Roberts, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Tower, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Eulette, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Briggs, Mr. and Mrs. N. H. McAdow, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Bishop, Mr. and Mrs. Hugo Otto, Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Reynolds and Mr. and Mrs. Martin Edinger. Music was furnished by Delos Owens' orchestra. Frappe was served.

Reception in Honor of J. E. Armstrong.

A grand celebration was given by the faculty, the alumni and the Parent-Teacher association to Mr. James Elmer Armstrong, who has supervised our high school for twenty-five years. A banquet was held at Englewood Men's club, where Mrs. McGinnis presented a silver service. At the school later in the evening the guests participated in an extensive program. Assistant Principal Mr. Harry Keeler, who was chairman, opened the program with a general greeting. He then said: "I wish to erect a memorial to Mr. Armstrong for his services to the school that will long be remembered."

John D. Shoop, superintendent of schools, on behalf of the board of education, congratulated Mr. Armstrong. Arne Oldberg, director of Philadelphia's Symphonic orchestra, who is also a member of the alumni, played three pieces by Chopin. Miss Viola Derait represented the faculty, wishing Mr. Armstrong a successful golden anniversary. Professor Bertram Nelson of the University of Chicago, represented the alumni, who, he said, were now scattered all over the country and several thousand strong. Mr. Helander presented Mr. Armstrong with a handsome watch, which he said was the appreciation of the alumni. Miss Norma Altermatt, Mr. Beardsley and the two glee clubs gave the music of the evening. Miss Anna Nordeen represented the student body, who, she said, were now 2,100 strong. Mr. Keeler closed the program with a revelation. This consisted of slides and a talk giving Mr. Armstrong's earlier life. Among those who were present at that gathering, which filled the hall to the doors, were Mr. and Mrs. O. T. Bright, Principal H. B. Loomas of Hyde Park high and Mrs. Loomas, Principal W. J. Bogan of Lane Tech. and Mrs. Bogan, Principal W. Comstock of Shakespeare school and Mrs. Comstock, Mrs. MacMahon, Rev. R. A. White, Mrs. R. J. Roulston.

The Englewood Sunday Evening Club.

We have listened to all kinds and conditions of platform orators during the past two and one-half years at the Englewood Sunday Evening club, but we are quite willing to bear testimony to this, that the most wonderful proof of the power of the conversational in platform oratory was demonstrated last Sunday evening in the splendid and fruitful address of Rev. Charles Reynolds Brown, D.D., dean of the Yale Divinity school, when he spoke to us on the subject of "The True Definition of a Man." Through the pure logic of the process of elimination he showed how the various conceptions of mankind relative to the defining of manhood and womanhood have passed through five distinct stages. Man is a victim, unable to rise above environment, circumstances, the elemental forces; then, man is a fighter, finding his chief glory in conquering and going on to conquer; then, man is a money-maker. "It takes money to make money, and the money that money makes makes more money," was the declaration of Benjamin Franklin. But the speaker proved that the mere matter of making money was not the chief end of man. Then man as a thinker was propounded and here we found glorious possibilities, and yet we were informed that merely as a thinking-machine man could not find the ultimate of success. The true defining of manhood and womanhood was emphasized in the thought of service. Usefulness is greatness and the highest conception of the purpose of manhood and womanhood is to be found in the thought that so beautifully delineates the character of the Master, "He went about doing good."

In our judgment, the high-water mark of pulpit power was measured in the marvelously simple, yet splendidly masterful, answer that the speaker gave to the question, "What is manhood and womanhood?" No finer address has ever been given before our club.

However, it is not our task to review to too great length the address that is past. We desire to call your attention to the fact that Homer B. Hulbert, diplomat, traveler, public speaker, eminent authority on social and political conditions in the Far East, is to be our guest and speaker next Sunday evening. He is a graduate of Dartmouth college and the Union Theological seminary of New York city. He was instructor in the Royal school at Seoul, Korea, from 1886-93. He took charge of the Trilingual Press at Seoul in 1894. He became head-master of the Imperial Normal school of Seoul in 1897. He founded in 1901 the Korean Review. He is a fellow of the Royal Geographical society and for 20 years he was in the employ of the Korean government and a personal adviser of the emperor of Korea, who was forced to abdicate in 1907. He is best known as an advocate of the Korean people against the usurpations of Japan. For two decades he lived in the center of those stirring scenes which diverted the attention of the whole world to the far East. He personally participated in many of those events, and has had unparalleled opportunities for investigation. He has been acquainted with all the men who played important parts in the great drama, from General Schufelt, who negotiated the first treaty, and General Foote, our first minister, down to the present time. He sided with Japan in the late war, believing that she would handle Korea carefully. He has found cause to revise that opinion. In 1905 he was sent to Washington by the emperor with a protest against the removal of the American legation from Seoul. He was charged by the Japanese with connivance in the assassination of Prince Ito, and his life was repeatedly threatened. For years he worked to obtain redress for Koreans who were robbed by Japanese, and thus incurred the bitter hatred of the dominant power. His story reads like a novel but the facts, abundantly corroborated, are stranger than fiction.

He has made a special study of the Pacific slope, and the whole question as to the future of the Pacific basin comes under review, and he gives facts which enable the listener to reach a definite conclusion to at least some of the points at issue.

Mr. Hulbert is an ardent advocate of peace, and proposes to show how that end can best be obtained.

He has made the Siberian transcontinental trip five times and has made careful investigations with a view to informing our people with the exact bearing of Russia upon the far Eastern problem. His address next Sunday night is on the subject, "A Yankee in the Far East." You will find this address to be something different. It is instructive and thought-provoking. You cannot well afford to miss it. Our soloist is Mr. M. J. Brines, tenor.

The attendance upon the Sunday Evening club this year has exceeded our most sanguine expectations, and we advise all interested to be on hand promptly. The service is held in the auditorium of the Englewood Presbyterian church. The doors open promptly at 6:30 and the service starts at 7:30. All are most cordially invited.

The Only Fisk Jubilee Singers.

Fisk university at Nashville, Tenn., founded out of the faith of Christian men and women in the possibilities of development for the newly emancipated Freedmen, has just completed 50 years of constructive service in helping prepare colored young people for the broadest usefulness. Steadfastly throughout the half century this university hast been true to the faith which gave it birth; and its ever-increasing desire has been to widen its opportunities of ministering to the broadest educational needs of those whom it was founded to serve.

A band of Fisk singers with "Plantation Melodies of the Old South" went forth to touch the hearts of humanity in our own land, and then crossed the seas and made captive the sympathies of those who loved their fellow men, some years ago when Fisk university needed financial help. They purchased with the price of these sweet songs the present site, erecting Jubilee hall at a cost of $150,000 and contributing $15,000 toward the erection of Bennett hall.

Worthy successors of those who preceded them will be present next Thursday evening, December 14, in Pilgrim Congregational church. The original Fisk University Jubilee Singers rescued from loss the sweet melodies that had sustained the colored people through American slave days, and we are exceedingly fortunate in Englewood to have these singers come before our people. A splendid program is being arranged, and the evening promises to be one to be long remembered among us.

Business Men Launch Campaign.

Englewood Commercial Association Movement Launched at Luncheon—John P. Wagner Gave Strong Address—Support of Varied Interests Assured—Co-Operation Is Keynote.

Get together for better business and a better Englewood was the keynote of the format launching of the rejuvenation campaign of the Englewood Commercial association Wednesday noon. A luncheon was held at the Englewood club and was attended by the largest and most enthusiastic crowd that has ever been seen in the community, for such a purpose.

John P. Wagner, director of the campaign, gave the address of the occasion. His remarks called forth encouraging words from many of those present, all declaring themselves loyal supporters of the movement for a better, bigger and busier Englewood.

With his usual vigor Mr. Wagner laid down the fundamental principles upon which the campaign was based and said in part:

"To make a better and more harmonious feeling in this community the varied interests must develop themselves in business and social lines so that there is a common understanding and sympathy.

"No matter what the project, the business man is the first to be enlisted in its work. That is a compliment to the business interests for they are looked upon as the fiber and backbone of the community and as the logical starting point. The same is true with the reorganization of the Commercial association. We are about to build the biggest organization Englewood ever had. We must make it the clearing house for community problems. We must make it the business example based upon the principle of truth. It must be built for the welfare of every man, woman and child and every institution that comes within your sphere of influence.

"When a project is for Englewood, everyone should put his shoulder to the wheel and make it go. It is the well-directed, unified force that makes progress irresistible."

Within the next few days the campaign headquarters will be opened and the committees in charge of the campaign will be announced. Engagements at clubs, societies and organizations interested in the movements are being made for Mr. Wagner. His talks are an inspiration everywhere and everyone interested in the welfare of Englewood is asked to co-operate in making the campaign a success by giving an opportunity of spreading the Gospel of harmony and co-operation.

Concerts in the Englewood Methodist Church.

On Thanksgiving evening Mr. Charles W. Leigh and his cohorts entertained their friends in a jolly concert of old-fashioned songs. A large assemblage of delighted applanders listened to the carefully arranged program with interest that never flagged until the last notes of "Auld Lang Syne" notified them that their roosting time had come and that one more of the famous entertainments of the Methodist church had passed into history. As the singers marched in powdered perruques, lace ruffles, and the courtly manners that belonged to the times of our great-great-grandparents, they were warmly greeted by the audience. After an organ number well played by Mrs Dugger, the choir gave a spirited rendition of Faning's "Song of the Vikings." The choir exhibited fine attacks and splendid balance of parts.

The special features were numerous and of high merit. Mr. Harper was in the happiest vein in his Irish songs, "Twickenham Ferry" and "My Love Nell." In addition to his splendid baritone voice, Mr. Harper has a fine brogue, and an easy, graceful manner on the stage. Miss Maxwell proved to the audience that this church possesses one of the finest sopranos in the city. Her singing of "Annie Laurie" and "Last Rose of Summer" were artistic and satisfying. Miss Florence Livingston made a very dapper Scotch lassie in her kilts, and sang "Comin' Through the Rye" very charmingly. The numerous quartettes, duets, and other specialties were given in fine humor and were all hilariously received. Mr. Leigh deserves the warmest praise from his church and from all of Englewood for the fine things he has done with this choir.

Tuesday evening, December 12, the choir will sing the Christmas Cantata, "Coming of the King," by Buck. This Christmas pageant will be presented in five tableaux, as follows: "The March of the Magi," "The Shepherds on the Plains of Bethlehem," "The Court Scene With Herod," "The Virgin and the Babe in the Stable," and "The Adoration."

The senior choir will be assisted by the junior and intermediate choirs. The Christmas story, when presented in this manner, is not only beautiful to see, but is very impressive. The door will be open at 7:15. The pageant will start at 8:15.

Parents-Teachers Association

The Parent-Teachers' club of the Lewis-Champlin school will hold a bazaar in the school on the afternoon and evening of Friday, December 15. This club has become a vital force in the community and is planning to increase its helpful activities. It is hoped this bazaar will add a goodly sum to its treasury. There will be the usual attractions and a good time is promised. All are invited. Come and help make it a success.

Community Club of Englewood.

The Englewood Community club will meet at the home of Mrs. A. W. Axtell, 431 61st Pl., at two o'clock Tuesday afternoon, December 12. An attractive program of readings and vocal solos will be offered, after which the members will enjoy a social hour.

Whole Story in a Word.

The following note, says the British Farm and Home, containing only one word, was recently handed to a village schoolmaster: "Cepatomategoataturing." It was brought by one of the boys on behalf of a neighbor's child who was absent. The schoolmaster eventually arrived at a solution—"Kept at home to go a-taturing!"

A Proviso.

"The rain falls on the just and the unjust alike." "Not on that portion of either who are smart enough to refuse to lend their umbrellas."

Hamilton Park Woman's Club

Mr. F. Emory Lyon, superintendent of the Central Howard association, will be the speaker at the next meeting of the Hamilton Park Woman's club on the afternoon of December 12, beginning at two o'clock. Mrs. Harry F. Atwood is chairman of the day. There will be a report on jails and police stations by Mrs. G. A. Haskell. Mrs. W. W. Munsell will read a paper dealing with charity, discriminate, judicious and otherwise, and the result. The music program will be in charge of Mrs. H. L. Fellowes.

Evangelistic Services.

Messrs. A. Livingston of Philadelphia and R. McCracken of Cleveland have commenced evangelistic meetings in Elberta hall, 6922 Wentworth Ave. Every week evening at eight, Saturday excepted; Sundays at 3:30 and 7:30. The old gospel is being told out. If you are a Christian, come! It will cheer you. If a sinner, come! It will save you if you believe. Everybody heartily invited. "Faith cometh by hearing and hearing by the word of God," Rom. 10:17.
